

HIST215N : New Hampshire History

This course examines New Hampshire history from the prehistoric era through the present day. Through an analysis of primary and secondary sources, each student will learn about local people and events and consider the extent to which New Hampshire history reflects larger, national developments. Students enrolled in this course will be expected to apply their knowledge by completing a research project utilizing primary sources or participating in a service learning project at a local historical society, non-profit agency, or other approved site.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

ENGL101N or ENGL110N.