

FIN130N : Money and Banking

This course introduces students to the fundamental role of money, financial institutions, and the banking system within the U.S. and global economy. Students will explore how money is created, how interest rates are determined, and how financial markets operate. Emphasis is placed on the structure and function of the Federal Reserve System, monetary policy tools, and the impact of banking regulations on economic stability. By the end of the course, students will understand how financial institutions support economic growth, manage risk, and influence everyday financial decisions.
